10. NEW PRESIDENT

Tim Hoare handed the meeting over to the new President for 2013/2014, Eamonn Madden and made special thanks to the Outgoing Directors who have worked tirelessly over the past year. Tim made a special vote of thanks to retiring Board members, Jim Grasso and Stephen Maher.

Eamonn Madden the incoming President thanked the outgoing President and board for their efforts. Eamonn made reference to the history of the ACSE published in 1982 and how one of the primary motivations in forming the organisation was to provide an opportunity for engineers to meet and socialise. He noted that the board in the coming year would put an emphasis on reinforcing this social aspect, as well as arranging more free technical breakfast talks in response to member's requests and to increase attendance, organise the inaugural ACSE engineering excellence awards and continue to increase membership to reach a sustainable level. Eamonn concluded by reminding the members that active participation was the lifeblood of the ACSE and urged all members to become more actively involved.

11. MATTERS FOR CONSIDERATION

No additional matters for consideration were raised from the meeting and there being no further business, The President declared the meeting closed at 8.45pm

Signed :

Eamonn Madden, President
